

I reject the argument that additional media ownership concentration is necessary for either the public interest OR the business interest in this country.

Diverse ownership is a patriotic and fundamental need of our democratic system.

The only business threat to the media are media companies that have already been allowed to grow too large.